I understand, acknowledge, and agree that...

Plagiarism is a type of fraud that includes any form of projecting that an idea or an expression of an idea is original when it has already been formulated in a similar form by a person not part of the current project.	TBJB
Plagiarism includes copying the words of another author, even in small amounts. The only exception being direct, attributed quotations, which must be kept to a minimum.	TBJB
When I write I must cite the sources of any ideas conveyed. If an idea does not have a citation attached I am effectively stating that it is original work.	TBJB
Plagiarism is wrong, damages society, and damages those whose work is being plagiarised. This is in part because credit for work done is a motivating factor for working.	TBJB
Plagiarism includes copying any expression of a thought in such a way that it meets the modern definition of copyright infringement exceeding fair use, regardless of whether the work being copied has been copyrighted, trademarked, patented or none of these.	TBJB
I will reference all sources cited, in a clear and consistent manner.	TBJB
I will not sell or distribute the project for the purpose of allowing another party to plagiarise any part of it, and understand that writing academic work for someone else is wrong.	TBJB
Any attempt to avoid detection of plagiarism (e.g. changing words or parts of sentences in copied work) is doubly fraudulent and dishonest.	TBJB
Failure to abide by applicable UFS policies and this agreement will result in disciplinary action, as explained in the UFS policy documents (available on the UFS website).	TBJB
I give permission for my work to be checked for plagiarism at any time, using either manual or automatic processes, including third party services.	TBJB
